

GLITTERATI ON THE GO BY KELLY CARTER

CHEERS TO THE COSMO Las Vegas shined brighter than normal when oodles of high-wattage stars flocked to Sin City for the grand opening celebration of The Cosmopolitan, expected to be the last of the mega-resorts to open on The Strip for a while. A few of the lucky celebs were among the first to check out the opulent, three-story bungalows that provide direct access to the exclusive Marquee Dayclub pool (opening late spring). Coldplay frontman Chris Martin and his wife Gwyneth Paltrow enjoyed treatments in the Sahra Suite at the Sahra Spa & Hammam; Jennifer Lopez played craps while other glitterati were spotted at celebrity chefs' restaurants. The Cosmopolitan is such a hit with the elite (Jay-Z and wife Beyoncé, Mark Wahlberg, Alex Rodriguez and Cameron Diaz, Forest and Keisha Whitaker and Holly Robinson Peete and Rodney Peete were all in the house) that it made Sex and the City star Kristin Davis change her opinion of Las Vegas. "I love it," Davis gushed. "I'm not a big Vegas person, but if it was all like this I would be thrilled. It's so tasteful."

PARK CITY PROPS Speaking of Holly Robinson Peete, the co-host of CBS' The Talk became an avid skier when she starred on 21 Jump Street, which shot in Vancouver. But because her husband's NFL contract forbade him to ski, the Peetes never took a family skiing vacation. During Celebrity Apprentice she bonded with fellow contestant Summer Sanders, a TV personality and Olympic gold medalist. Sanders, married to Olympic skier Erik Schlopy, invited the Peetes and their four children to stay at her home in Park City. Time for the former quarterback to learn to ski. "I was nervous about Rodney and his football knees," Robinson Peete said. And she worried that he would try to master the sport too quickly because of his competitive juices. "He picked it up in five minutes," she said. "I was so impressed with him. I think he knew he couldn't be the one in the snow falling." No sooner had they departed that they were already planning another trip. "I wasn't aware of how world class Deer Valley is," Robinson Peete said. "Summer is never going to be able to get rid of us. I walked through Montage, which is brand, spanking new and spectacular. I love it from the one in Laguna and Beverly Hills. For now we're going to be staying at 'Hotel Schlopy' because the rates are better, but we will definitely be going to brunch at Stein Eriksen Lodge and the spa at Montage."
